proud spirit

Pride in one's surroundings reflects pride in self. To be proud is to have done your best, given your all, sacrificed self.

Pride is a basketball victory . . . a close football game with DeMotte . . . a new class ring . . . a steady who scored a basket . . . a B+ in Government . . . a walk with her during a spring lunch break.

Pride need not be for only the shining and new, but also for the old and true. ARCUS '69 reflects a "proud spirit" for a year of hard work, anxious moments, exciting rendezvous, spirited activities, disappointing losses, and large accomplishments.

spirited parties and projects reflect pride in life

School activities reflect a spirit of excitement and turn a dull day into a "camelot" of expectance.

Becoming involved in these parties, dances, and projects means becoming involved with the school, community, and others.

Activities turn the school into a kaleidoscope of colors . . . of experiences . . . of moods. Pride in these small but spirited events are infectious to other greater things to follow.

homecoming combines the proud spirit of the past with the present

An inspiring pep session began Wheatfield's 1968 Homecoming. Next was a parade through town which ended on the football field for a final pep rally. The students then went home to anxiously await the night's game.

During halftime of the game Vicki Theis, senior, was crowned Homecoming Queen. Her court was formed by Judi Bierma, junior; Vicki Cortex, sophomore; and Sharon Davis, freshman.

Following the game, cocoa and donuts were served to the football players of both teams by the S.S.S.

To end the day's events the annual Homecoming Dance, sponsored by the Junior Class, was held in the gym. The band providing the music was "The Us."

the catalyst for a proud spirit is sports

Sports events captivate the students. A game won or lost . . . an early rise to daily practice . . . a goal in sight but never held.

Wheatfield High School is sports. It breathes, sleeps and eats, with the ever present pounding of athletic intrigue.

The catalyst for a "proud spirit" is the excitement and roar of a capacity crowd in the little pink gymnasium.

Here the "Red Devils" find their pride . . . even after denying it existed at all.

academic guidance and future planning keep administrators busy

School administrators planned ahead. The new Kankakee Valley School made significant progress toward becoming a reality. A large work load was placed on the shoulders of the superintendent and assistant in providing for a new high school to unite DeMotte and Wheatfield in the near future. At the same time, the principal, with the administrators, strove to maintain the highest degree of academic progress with the old facilities.

The school secretary is a very necessary part of Wheatfield High. Not only does she work as typist and office secretary, but also as general bookkeeper and treasurer of the various school clubs and organizations.

The guidance department strives to counsel and aid the students so that they might be better prepared for the future.

Other duties of that department include administering certain tests and helping the student fill out applications.

Mr. Jones jokes with his world history sophomores.

current events are stressed in social studies

Current events gave the impetus to history and government students for an understanding of their important roles in forming an American future. Learning the difficulties of peoples in the past was provided through class role playing, in the form of trials, skits, and press conferences. In playing these roles, students soon found their problems of today similar to the problems of earlier peoples.

 ROBERT LEWIS--English, 8th sponsor.

The English departments of Wheatfield and DeMotte began a joint project of writing a course of study for language arts. The reason being that similar goals might be reached so that the students will be a homogenous group when they become one student body. In addition, much needed audio-visual material for use in both schools was purchased, including films, film strips, and recordings of literary classics.

reading and latin strengthens language arts

Latin students learned how our English words are formed. In Latin I, noun and verb constructions proved important in forming Latin sentences and translating Latin to English. Much was taught about the early Roman culture. Latin II students constructed projects concerning the buildings of Rome.

A badly needed remedial reading program is in its second year at Wheatfield School. For the many students who have fallen behind in reading ability, it provided a chance to achieve in school work. A special library of materials and resources for speeding reading rates and increasing verbal comprehension has been started.

John Abbrington and Byron Burdett check their daily grades in Latin.

low lights, soft music add romantic touch to '68 prom

Low lights and soft music added a romantic atmosphere for the Wheatfield 1968 prom. Providing the music for the event was the Corner Stones.

For the first time the prom was held at Johannas Hall in Chesterton, which proved to be the perfect place for everyone.

Highlighting the dance was the coronation of Ed Wright and Bonita Brower as king and queen of the prom.

Despite the late hours, the traditional post proms were held throughout the area and proved to be very enjoyable for all.

arcus '69 takes on a new look

A record high both in number of books sold and amount of money raised were the results of an energy charged staff. A new ARCUS room gave these seniors a place to call home for the hundreds of hours work required to edit the pioneer publication. An all new book with 20 extra pages, color, and total coverage, created much work for a staff desiring to tell the story of the school year 1968-69.

red devils have trouble putting four quarters together

The Wheatfield Red Devils started their 1968 season with things looking grim, as we opened with La Lumiere losing 30--7. As the season progressed the Devils were still looking for their first win. It seemed as though the Devils could not put four quarters together.

victory was just out of sight for the red devils

The Devils with only two games left, went against North White and saw light of a victory only to be turned off in the last seconds of the game.

Going into the last game of the season with DeMotte, the Devils, very determined to defeat their arch rivals, failed, losing 13--12.

We are sure the team and coach tried their best this season and feel they should be very proud.

better offense, improved defense for red devils

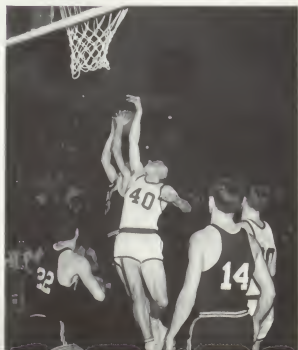

The Red Devils started the 68-69 season with eager anticipation. They were determined to improve upon last year's record, as outstanding as it was. The first concern was defense, and the Devils set about to correct and improve it. This year's record shows that they certainly have done a remarkable job. The Devil offense has always been one of the best, and this year has been no exception as they outscored their opponents again and again.

spirit, determination mark devil season

The Devil losses were few and very close, often losing by only one or two points in overtime. The season went by quickly and proved exciting for both the fans and the players.

Through it all, the Devils showed the kind of spirit and determination that made everyone proud.

seniors wish to be remembered for their spirit

1969 has been a year of pride for the Senior Class of Wheatfield High. We are proud of our many accomplishments in athletics, school activities, community affairs, and education. The senior play, class program, and our graduation were but a few of the achievements that make us proud. But we have felt more than pride. We have experienced feelings of joy, relief, wonder, and satisfaction as we entered the final stage of our school life. May we be remembered not for our deeds, but for our spirit.

... with a proud spirit

We have attempted to capture the school year 1969 as we knew it. We were not satisfied with only the events of the year receiving full coverage, but we also felt a responsibility to show some of the spirit and emotion of the year.

In accomplishing this enormous and sensitive task, as editor-in-chief, I would like to offer my thanks to the many people who contributed to making this story a success. My special thanks go to Baumer's Photography for their excellent cooperation and high quality work, and to our American Representative Fred Plocher for many creative ideas.

Most of all I would like to thank our advisor Mr. Koenig for the tremendous effort and advice that has helped so much in making this story a reflection of Wheatfield's "proud spirit".

Tom Tanner
